*Remember To VOTE this November!****

If Measure 114 passes then it effectively bans the sale of firearms in Oregon until a brand new system is in place and it doesn't specify timelines or provide money to complete the building or implementation of the new system, effectively stopping any new gun sales for years.

Remember to go get/buy your tags before your hunt starts.

If you have a sports pac remember that you still need to get your free tag as the voucher is not a valid tag. OSP Fish & Game Troopers are going to crack down on people that do not have their proper tag as well as people that do not tag their animal in a timely manner. Make sure to fill out the tag as soon as you get it down for good, then when you get it out attach the tag to the animal. If you are e-tagging, remember it is your responsibility to have your phone charged and ready to go so you can tag the animal and or show it to the Trooper if asked. Have a power bank or backup to help keep your device charged and make sure to have pens/paper/plastic bag/ribbon, etc. for tagging the animal.

The Chapter Meeting is the third Wednesday this month due to elk hunting that date is November 16th

No on Ballot Measure 114!

REQUIRES NONEXISTENT PERMIT SYSTEM TO PURCHASE A FIREARM

The extensive permit-to-purchase system required by Measure 114 would take years to fully create and implement.

Firearms purchases would cease until the system could be implemented.

Only legal, law abiding firearms owners would be penalized by these infringements.

CREATES A SEARCHABLE DATABASE OF ALL PERMIT HOLDERS

All permit holders will be entered into a searchable database that includes all personal information, including photograph.

All firearms purchases are also entered into the database.

There are no parameters on who has access to this information and it is kept for an indefinite period of time.

REQUIRES ENORMOUS FINANCIAL COST TO TAXPAYERS

Projected costs for the creation and implementation of the permit process and database for 2023-25 are:

State Government (General Fund tax dollars):

$15.4 million

Local Governments (County & Municipal tax dollars):

$51.2 million

OUTLAWS FIREARMS THAT CAN HOLD 10 OR MORE ROUNDS INTERNALLY

Measure 114's ban on "large capacity" magazines includes both fixed and detachable magazines.

Any firearm with an internal tube or chamber that can hold more than 10 rounds would be banned.

For example, shotguns with barrels over 21" and many other firearms.

Video conveys need for safe wildlife crossings

OHA is working tirelessly to improve ungulate migration, and reduce wildlife-vehicle collisions in Oregon. Many aspects of this example in Nevada apply to Oregon, and we need your help to achieve what other states have done to bolster big game populations.

Hunters should have their heads examined

ODFW seeks samples to test for Chronic Wasting Disease

By Mike Totey, Conservation Director
mtotey@oregonhunters.org

The Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife is looking for your help this fall for preventing Chronic Wasting Disease (CWD) from entering Oregon, and detecting CWD if it already has. CWD is a fatal neurological disease infecting deer and elk across North America.

OHA President Steve Hagan spent the first three days of the deer season assisting ODFW at the big game check station in Prineville. Samples were taken from 49 deer and one elk that weekend at the check station. Other check stations at Celilo and Elgin collected 104 and 15 samples, respectively. These samples will be tested for the presence of CWD to find out if the disease has already spread into Oregon. It was recently detected in Idaho very close to the Oregon border.

While check stations in Prineville, Elgin and Celilo were all mandatory check stations for those who pass by, any hunter who harvests a deer or elk this fall is encouraged to contact a local ODFW office to make an appointment to take a sample from the harvested animal.

For testing, ODFW will need the animal's head and at least one vertebrae below the skull. Keep your deer or elk head cool prior to sampling if possible. Once your sample is collected, you'll be able to get the results of the test online.

If you plan to take your animal to a taxidermist or butcher, ODFW has a program in place for those facilities to take the sample from your animal and submit it.

Currently all samples are sent out of state to other wildlife disease labs for analysis. OHA has been working hard to support an in-state testing facility at Oregon State University. This will increase capacity for testing, and also help get test results to the hunter faster.

If you are one of the lucky hunters travelling out of state this fall, keep in mind the strict rules for transporting your harvested animal home, specifically the ban on bringing home the brain and spinal column.

Public or private land? ODFW adds hunt reporting question to improve hunt planning and management

By Tyler Dungannon, Conservation Coordinator
TD@oregonhunters.org

OHA believes that Oregon hunters deserve access to harvest statistics at the wildlife management unit scale, and we maintain that hunters play a critical role in wildlife management by providing harvest data to wildlife management agencies. After many discussions between OHA and ODFW over the last six years on the topic, this year via mandatory hunter reporting surveys, ODFW is asking successful big game hunters whether they harvested their animal on public land, private land, or private lands that allow public hunting access (e.g., Access and Habitat properties).

If you have ever perused harvest stats for a unit before, applying for a controlled hunt, you have probably wondered whether the harvest success stat for a given unit was representative of the unit's public land for which you have access. For example, the Ochoco Unit's estimated harvest success for any legal weapon buck deer was 25 percent in 2021. Just 53 percent of the unit is public land, so what percentage of the harvest occurred on public land? These are questions that OHA believes hunters deserve to have answered, particularly because hunters are providing the data.

With ongoing ungulate distribution issues, and efforts underway to retain ungulates on public lands, this information will benefit ODFW and enhance the agency's ability to manage big game populations. The data provided by hunters will increase support for the Access and Habitat Program, and above all for OHA, now hunters will be better informed when planning hunts.
